

HOLD ON WE'LL BE BACK TOGETHER SOON

Comprehending the difficulties of our relationship we chose to symbolize with matching tattoos of a mountain.
And it hurts I haven't embraced your presence for 2years,1month,5days,and 8hours but who's really countin.
I miss you my love and we haven't achieved our goals and seperation was never part of our plan.
Though you consistently thanked me for pushing you to be greater,it was you who made me a better man.
Through my existence I never found that one woman to start a family with that was particularly my style.
I thank God for sending you and finding me worthy enough to try to birth me a child.
Though you never got pregnant I know God had a reason and our perfect seasons coming and knowing that helps.
Maybe God forseen this current crisis and wanted me physically present to see my child take her first steps.
So many days I feel like giving up on having a seed but God said not to,so I must continue the fight.
Plus I gain much hope nightly gazing at the ceiling smiling visualizing what our pretty girl will look like.
The conection we share could never be replaced our souls are knitted together today and forever.
What we did as a team exceeds average relationships,we moved and thought as one and nightly prayed together.
We could not see our true selves without first seeing eachother by opening our hearts where love shook.
We finally lost our inner fears and held out authentic mirrors to each other and was no longer afraid to look.
You run through each bone in my body and have imprinted your name on my soul within my inner room.
So always know our hearts is the last line of emotional defense,Baby HOLD ON WE'LL BE BACK TOGETHER SOON!

David B.

